DOWN AND OUT

SOCIETY BRANDS AS A CRIMINAL MAN WITHOUT THE PRICE OF A MEAL

The following letter was received by Ezra F. Parker, proprietor of the house furnishing store at 417 South Brand boulevard. The writer of the letter entered Mr. Parker's store early in March, and after asking for work in the presence of Mr. Parker and Mr. C. W. Kent, he was promised work by Mr. Kent, the conditions being that he was to be ready for duty the next morning. The letter which follows is self explanatory:

Friend: I hope you will pardon the rather unusual address on the envelope. I tried to secure a Glendale directory in Los Angeles, but not being able to find one, I decided to let Uncle Sam's brains at Glendale find the address.

I am the hungry man that came into your store on the first of this month and asked for assistance, and after you had helped me I told you I would be around in the morning to do a little work.

At about 3:30 a. m. myself and partner were placed under arrest, charged with vagrancy. At the time we were sleeping in a barn.

A little after 10 o'clock the same morning we were sentenced to ten days in the county jail, and after the judge had thus disposed of "justice," he informed us in a fatherly way that he was doing us an "act of kindness" by sending us to jail, as we would have three square meals, a warm place to sleep and a good ten days' rest. Ye gods and undersized fishes, what mockery! What a "rest!" On our arrival at the jail we were informed that the next morning we would be taken to the county chain-gang, set to work with a pick and shovel and clothed in convict garb. Oh, yes, we got a fine chance to rest (when our time was up), for in the daytime it was work, work, work, and at night time the lice made us scratch, scratch, scratch.

On arriving at the chain-gang camp we were put into a large cage that contained eighty prisoners, from the very lowest depths of the underworld— thieves, thugs and moral degenerates. Of the eighty confined in that cage there were only ten that I'd trust with a collar button.

Society sent me to jail because I was without visible means of support; society turned me out in a worse condition than I went in. When I went in I had thirteen cents; when I came out I had ten cents. When I went in I was clean; when I came out I was covered with lice. When I went in my thoughts were far from crime; when I came out my thoughts were very near crime. What more could you expect, for was I not in a fine training school?

There is many a man on the tramp today that can be saved from a life of crime if his fellow men would give him a helping hand instead of a chain-gang sentence.

I have always been a Christian until through no fault of my own (outside of putting too much trust in my fellow men) I became down and out. I have been twice arrested and branded a criminal, all because I didn't have the price of a meal or lodging. Treatment of this sort, also enforced association with criminals in jail, has knocked the Christianity out of me.

I have now "thrown my hat in the ring" and have told society to go to the place that made Sherman famous.

What mother's son is next?

JAMES COFFIN (?)

The above letter is not given space for the purpose of criticizing the Glendale police force, for they certainly did their duty in arresting strangers found in a barn. The letter is published to give our readers an opportunity to see how the man who is down and out looks at his own case.

INTERESTING RELICS

Mr. A. M. French of 815 West Colorado boulevard has some very interesting old relics and souvenirs of years ago. Among them is a Mexican dollar given him by his father-in-law on the day of his marriage. This dollar represented four days' hard work as a shoemaker seventy-four years ago, and is worth fifty cents today.

Good home-cured ham could be purchased for a cent and a half a pound in those days and other provisions in proportion, so that after all $1 for four days' work wasn't such poor pay.

Mr. French also has a $50 bill and a $2.25 bill, Confederate money, sent to him by his brother during the war.

Blessed is the laugh-maker. For he makes this old world a more tolerable place of habitation.

TO GIVE AWAY ORANGES

HONORING QUEEN CANDIDATE, PACIFIC ELECTRIC TO GIVE AWAY THE FRUIT

In honor of Miss Sibyl Mather, the Pacific Electric employees' candidate for queen of the Southland, and to commemorate Orange Day, the Pacific Electric will give away oranges on every car on its system on Saturday, March 20.

All Pacific Electric conductors are selling votes for their candidate, and with every vote sold on Orange Day the purchaser will receive as a premium two of the largest and finest oranges that can be obtained in Southern California.

The Pacific Electric is furnishing the oranges and President Paul Shoup personally has offered seventeen cash prizes for the conductors selling the greatest number of votes on that day.

Both the Orange Day committee and the 1915 general committee have given their unqualified sanction to the plan, for not only will the fruit be one of the finest advertisements for California oranges that has ever been devised, but also every vote sold will mean ten cents put aside for the entertainment of Southern California visitors during the exposition period.

The Pacific Electric employees who are behind this plan are working tooth and nail to obtain the crown for Miss Sibyl Mather, and not only will they carry through the Orange Day campaign, but also have placed a "Pacific Electric musical road show" on the theatrical map to tour Southern California cities with a bill which any professional house would envy.

In addition, employees of the accounting department have arranged for a "gambol" on March 19 and 20 at 431 South Hill street, Los Angeles. This gambol will be known as "a holiday in hades." Their program under a "one ten-cent vote admission," calls for midway attractions, dancing at the devil's ball, games of chance, cabaret, vaudeville and "divers devilish divertisments." Here is what they say of their entertainment:

"A rollicking, merry-making exploit to commemorate the first holiday that Satan has celebrated since Adam and Eve ate the pippin in the Garden of Eden. The "prince of darkness" will alleviate his fiendish characteristics, and assume an amiable and altruistic spirit. He invites you to participate in the ceremonies. If you are a devotee of infinite pleasure, grasp this opportunity and be among those present."

GOODS ENTERTAIN

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Good of 875 South Louise street entertained with a five hundred party on Wednesday evening. Decorations and refreshments were of green and white in keeping with St. Patrick's day and the rooms were very pretty. There were six tables of players, first prizes being won by Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Clemens and consolations by Mrs. Smith and Mr. McKenney. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Pulliam and their house guest, Miss Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. V. Price Brown, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Beach, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Betts, Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. McKenney, Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Clemens, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Beamon, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hewes of Los Angeles, and the host and hostess.

THE VACANT LOTS

There seems to be a strong sentiment among the residents of all cities to so revise the mode of making assessments on real estate that the owners of vacant lots will be required to pay their reasonable proportion of the tax. The present conditions are that the residential property owners go on and improve their holdings, thus increasing the value of all property, even the vacant lots. The vacant lot owner merely waits until his property increases in value as a result of the improvement made in adjoining property.

GLENDALE A GROWING CITY

Occasionally there are differences in Glendale as to the best methods of conducting municipal affairs. Glendale is growing and conditions are not today what they were five years ago. Glendale has become a small city and is considered by her neighbors as being a very live one, too. Streets must be improved, lighting systems must be installed, and these improvements are bound to meet with objection in many instances. There are always to be found two classes of people—those for and those against public improvements.

NON-STOP RECORD

OLDFIELD WINNER IN YESTERDAY'S 300 MILE VENICE GRAND PRIX RACE

Barney Oldfield in a Maxwell won the Venice 300-mile Grand Prix race Wednesday and broke the world's record for a non-stop race, winning a purse of $3500. His average time was 68.31 miles per hour.

Billy Carlson, Oldfield's Maxwell team-mate, a young man who has risen to fame as a racer in the past year, came in second, just a few seconds behind the winner.

Glover Ruckstell in a Mercer won third money. Ruckstell when in the lead broke a valve which cost him seven minutes and first place.

Fourth place went to Johnny Marquis in Charlie Fuller's German Bugatti. Eddie Hearne in J. Alex Sloan's Case took fifth place. He had a place among the leaders cinched. He had driven a great race and had he been able to keep up the grind the name of Oldfield might have appeared lower in order.

It was in the ninety-second lap. The field had narrowed down to a select party. Hearne was climbing on the leaders when he broke an oil line. The Case pilot lost several precious minutes, but fought on around with his crippled car.

Dave Lewis, driving Earl Cooper's Stutz No. 7, was the prima donna hard-luck man of the course. At the sixty-sixth lap he took the lead and he held the Stutz in front position throughout the race to the ninety-fifth lap. He had crossed out on his ninety-sixth. He had two laps on the next car. Starter George Adair stood ready with the green flag, the signal that he was starting on his last lap.

One of the many little acts of fate took a hand in the start of Pullen in the Mercer. When given the word to "go" by Starter Adair, he dropped his clutch in to make that wonderful get-away of his; an awful grinding of gears was the only result. Both he and his mechanician pushed his car up in front of the pit to take a look. A sad sight awaited him after removing the transmission cover—he had stripped his low gear.

TROPICO

It was truly a St. Patrick party with which Howard McGillis and Floyd Stokes entertained a coterie of friends, complimentary to Robert Cowlin of Ivy street, Tuesday evening. As this delightful affair was in the nature of a surprisee, Messrs. McGillis and Stokes, with their guests, assembled at the home of Miss Ernestine Lyon, and then at the hour when Robert Cowlin was busily engaged in perusing an interesting book, called at his home. With ferns and green flowers, colored for the occasion and many streamers of green, the Cowlin residence soon assumed the appearance of a most festive occasion. Guessing contests and other amusements afforded a most delightful evening. Eugene H. Imler captured the prize in the guessing contest. Favors were St. Patrick flags, while green candy pigs added much to the merriment. The guests whom the host entertained, assisted by Howard McGillis and Floyd Stokes, were Misses Ernestine Lyon, Marjorie Imler, Evangeline Hunchberger, Esther Schremp, Cecilia Lyon, Florence Heacock, Mona Butter, Hazel Flower, Helen Swinson and Muriel Turner. Messrs. Eugene H. Imler, Thomas Phillips, Harry Spinks, Chancellor Livingston, William Bode, Edwin Heacock, Olin Wilson, Frank Hester, Carlton West, Lehman Crandall, Miller Fisher, Hill McGillis and Donald Cowlin.

Dr. Samuel A. Pollock, as the guest of Mr. Robert Hughes of Los Angeles, left the first of the week on a four weeks' motor trip to Randsburg and Southern Nevada.

Mrs. Harriet Van Brocklin, after a most delightful visit of several months as the guest of her friend Mrs. Nina Richards of Paloma avenue, has returned to her home in Rockford, Ill., stopping en route to visit the exposition in San Francisco.

Miss Cora Hiickman was the guest of honor at a dinner party given by Mrs. L. E. Phipps of Los Angeles Wednesday evening. Miss Hickman and other guests motored to Montebello, where they spent the remainder of the evening with friends.

Mrs. Clem Moore of 1468 West Second street, assisted by Mrs. Horace G. Hosford, entertained today with a luncheon for Mrs. Bluer, Mrs. Yard, Mrs. Usilton, Mrs. Carroll and Mrs. Burgess of Toledo, Ohio. Decorations were of green and white and the same colors were carried out in the luncheon. Embroidery and conversation sped a most delightful afternoon.

PRACTICAL TEACHING

HIGH SCHOOL COOKING CLASS STUDIES CUTS OF MEAT AT MARKET

Practical demonstrations of cuts of meats was the interesting work of the cooking class of the Glendale Union high school this morning. It was only a part of their study in meats—from the butcher to the table—and it was only a minor part of their study of home-making and other courses in which practical education receives first thought.

Fifteen girls, under the direction of Miss Ellen Hanson, instructor in things culinary at the local school, journeyed over to Fred's cash market, where his courteous assistant, Mr. Harry Brown, played the role of instructor in a forty-five minute demonstration of cuts of beef.

An entire beef was used in the lesson and every cut was demonstrated to the satisfaction and education of every student. The rump, the round, the sirloin, and the porterhouse steaks will now become one and a separate thing in the eyes of the budding housekeepers who watched the butcher's dexterous knife. How to use each cut most economically was also demonstrated.

The practical education which the local school is offering is something to be commended. In the subject studied this morning it is stated that less than fifty per cent of the housewives can tell porterhouse steak from sirloin, which means that the graduates from the local school will have the advantage over their mothers in that way.

DEATH OF JOE MAREK

Glendale and Tropico friends were sorry to hear of the death of Joe Marek, which occurred Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at his home in Alhambra. Mr. Marek is a son of Mrs. Mary Marek and a brother of George and Andrew Marek of Tropico. The deceased lived in Tropico for eight years until his marriage a few years ago, since which he has made his home in Alhambra. He was injured in the Vineyard wreck a few years ago and never recovered from the shock. He leaves his wife and two small daughters.

The funeral will be held Saturday, but complete arrangements have not been made at this writing.

EXPOSITION ATTENDANCE

Nearly 1,500,000 admissions to the San Francisco exposition during the first three weeks after its opening is a particularly gratifying record. Encouraging attendance also is reported from the San Diego exposition. The great throngs that were predicted certainly are coming to the expositions. It hardly was to be expected that so great a rush would come so early. It may be expected that, throughout the summer and early fall, while schools are not in session and while multitudes of grown-ups, as well as children, are having their vacations, the number of exposition visitors will be greatest.

Without a doubt the eyes of hundreds of thousands are turned toward California this year. Tourist travel to Europe will be the lightest this season it ever has been since touring Europe became so much a matter of custom with traveling Americans. Those who travel must have somewhere of interest to go—and California is the place for them this year.

ORANGES FOR ALL

Orange day promises to be more generally observed this year than ever before and people generally are arranging to serve this luscious fruit in every form on Saturday, as well as to send boxes of oranges, large and small, to eastern friends.

T. W. Preston, one of Glendale's orange growers, has determined that no one shall go without oranges on Saturday, March 20, because of the high price of the fruit. He has made a special price of five dozen nice sweet oranges for 25 cents for Orange day, or a full box for 50 cents.

ENTERTAINS CLUB

Mrs. C. B. Wilde of 238 North Louise street entertained the Wednesday Afternoon Thimble club at her home on Wednesday. The rooms were beautiful and fragrant with peach and plum blossoms, great quantities of the dainty flowers being used. Luncheon was served at one o'clock and the afternoon pleasantly passed in needlework and chat. Covers were laid for Mrs. Augustus Eddy, Mrs. Gus Pulliam, Mrs. Wm. Althouse, Mrs. Capt. Neel, Mrs. J. S. Neel, Mrs. T. J. Keleher and the hostess.

Truth will ever rise above falsehood like oil above water.—Cervante.

NORTH GLENDALE

CASA VERDUGO METHODISTS CONTINUE REVIVAL IN SPECIAL SERVICES

The special prayer meeting at the Casa Verdugo M. E. church Wednesday evening was reported by the pastor to be the largest in the history of the church. All present were enthusiastic concerning the meetings of Brown and Curry. Tonight Rev. Rede A. Johnson of the First M. E. church of Glendale will speak and will bring with him a number of laymen from his church. Friday evening Rev. W. E. Edmonds of the Presbyterian church, Glendale, will preach. An invitation is extended to members and friends to attend these meetings and to bring others with them.

Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Townsend of 507 North Brand boulevard entertained with a St. Patrick's dancing party Wednesday evening. The decorations were in harmony with the occasion. Every nook and corner of the beautiful home was a bower of ferns. A buffet luncheon was served at 11:30 after dancing. There were thirty friends from Los Angeles who motored out to enjoy the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend were assisted by Mr. Townsend's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Townsend of 634 North Louise street.

Mr. William Rising of Los Angeles was in North Glendale recently calling upon several former neighbors while here.

Miss Elise Wenger of Los Angeles is the house guest for the mid-week of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Jared Wenger of 819 Campbell street.

Mr. Frank Winslow of 1629 Ruth street was called home from Long Beach, where he is employed, because of the serious illness of his wife.

Mr. J. W. Bike of Pasadena was in North Glendale the first of the week looking after his extensive property interests on Dryden street.

Mrs. E. H. Tatum of 1300 North Maryland avenue entertained as her guest at luncheon Wednesday Miss Clara Belle Taylor of Los Angeles, who leaves in a few days for an extended stay in San Francisco, where she will meet friends and together they will enjoy viewing the exposition.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Davis of 911 Randolph street returned home very recently from an interesting and delightful trip to Honolulu, having spent several weeks leisurely touring places of interest on the islands.

Mrs. Jared Wenger of 819 Campbell street was the guest for the day of her mother, Mrs. C. P. McCann of West Seventh street, last Monday.

Mrs. Myrtle Utzman of West Thirty-sixth street, Los Angeles, is spending a fortnight with her sister, Mrs. Frank Winslow of 1629 Ruth street.

Friends of Mrs. I. C. Rice of 1632 Ruth street will be very glad to hear that she has recovered from the serious illness that has confined her to the bed for the past fortnight and is now able to be out of doors part of the day.

ANOTHER P. E. HOLDUP

At one o'clock this morning a Burbank bound P. E. car in charge of Conductor Barlow and Motorman Mason was held up at Arden Junction and the conductor was relieved of $9.00 in money. The holdup man informed him that he wanted only the company's money. Conductor Barlow states that this is the same fellow that held him up at the end of the Burbank line a few weeks ago and robbed him of $25. It is thought this may be the same fellow that held up the Glendale car early Monday morning.

CARD CLUB

Mrs. Lawrence Jenkins of 1459 Milford street entertained with a card party on Wednesday afternoon for a number of friends who have formed a little club. Fresias and acacia blossoms very prettily decorated the rooms and dainty refreshments were served after the game, in which Mrs. Peete won first prize and Mrs. Nichols the consolation. There were twelve ladies present and a very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all. The club will meet next time with Mrs. Leppleman, 1457 Milford street.

PLEASANT MOTOR TRIP

Dr. and Mrs. J. F. McArthur of 561 Oak drive, with Mrs. Wilmot Parcher, enjoyed a very pleasant automobile trip to Montebello on Wednesday, where they spent the day at the lemon ranch of C. C. Jackson.

SUNSHINE AND CLOUDS

LITTLE BEAN VINE HAD FRIEND ABOVE ON WHOM TO RELY

In the corner of a garden, close to a high fence, two tiny green leaves poked their pointed heads out of mother earth. They were very, very small and were almost hidden from view by a few bunches of tall, coarse grass and other vines.

But a little sunbeam who had crept down among the weeds found the two little leaves and kissed them. It flitted around and played with them for a while, but soon the big sun called the sunbeam and it had to go. The next day and the next and every day after that the little sunbeam peeped over the tall grass and crept down to the little leaves. Each day the leaves grew bigger and taller and soon more leaves came out, and before long little Miss Bean Vine, for a bean vine the two little leaves turned out to be, Miss Bean Vine herself peeped out at her surroundings over the grasses. Her new shoots she twined about the wire fence and so day by day she climbed higher and grew bigger and prettier.

In the day time the sun shown warm and soft upon her and at night she drank the dew as the drops nestled on her leaves and refreshed herself.

One day there came a great big ugly long-legged grasshopper. He spied Miss Bean Vine and quickly settled himself on a leaf and began to eat it.

Slowly he ate at first, then faster until quite a space on one side was eaten away. Desperately the vine begged the sun to help her, so he decided to burn off the grasshopper. He shone hotter and hotter, but still the ugly insect clung to the vine and ate more. So he grew hotter still and the poor little vine wilted under the intense heat.

"This will not do," thought the sun. "I must not kill the little vine, but I cannot rid her of that grasshopper."

Then for a whole day the sun wondered what he could do, and finally decided to call upon the clouds.

"Let us help the poor bean vine," sun suggested. "I nearly burnt her up trying to make the horrid bug go away, but he would not go. Now you send a shower and I think the beast will stop eating her and go elsewhere and I am sure that your cool waters will revive her."

So the clouds opened and sent a gentle rain, which frightened away the grasshopper, took the crispy sun-scorched curls out of the leaves and put a fresh coat of green on the whole vine, causing Miss Bean Vine to grasp again the wire fence and climb upward.

And so it is with our lives, when something depresses us and eats away our hearts and strength, taking all the sweetness and beauty of our lives. May we call upon a higher, stronger Friend to lift our burdens and strengthen us that we may again grasp life and grow sweeter and stronger for our trials and tribulations.

SPECIAL MEETINGS AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The enthusiasm of the Brown and Curry meetings is still manifest in the four days' campaign at the Christian church. The splendid meetings which Elder Francis is conducting at his church are well attended and the audiences are very responsive. There is good music, under the leadership of Mr. Jordan, and the meetings are proving a fitting climax to the big revival. There have been several accessions to the church and more are expected. The same spirit prevails as in the big meetings and everyone is made welcome and feels at home. These meetings continue tonight and tomorrow night. All are cordially invited.

STUDENTS AND HOME MERCHANTS

High school students are planning to take up an active trade-at home campaign in connection with the publication of the "Item" annual, according to the statement made the other day by one of the students connected with the magazine. As an active demonstration of their scheme, the students have signed a monster petition, stating that the home merchants who contribute toward advertising space in the "Item" annual are deserving of the support of every high school student, and that the signers of the petition agree to patronize these merchants whenever possible to do so. Over 1400 of the students and faculty have joined in this campaign, and plan to let the merchants know that the high school believes in Pasadena as the city in which to make purchases.—Pasadena Star.

WILD LILIES OF CALIFORNIA

"You will find lilies sprinkled all over California. The Shasta lily, white and fragrant under the pines and tall as a man is the lily of the north," Edwin Markham tells us in his book on California, the Wonderful. "The leopard lily lifts its gorgeous yellow blossoms in shady canons; while the Humboldt lily, orange red with spots of purple bestows its beauty on the open fields. The wild hyacinth or wild onion also loves the open skies and the watered valleys."

"The Mariposa lily," he goes on, "is more wonderful in its beauty, floating in the air like a gorgeous butterfly. Many of our fields are tinted with the delicate globes of this airy blossom, tethered to the earth by only the frailest stem. Through changing purple and white and gold the colors run, the three leaves of the corolla pranked and pricked with elfin signs and omens. Let Ina Coolbrith put into verse the mood and meaning of the flower.

" 'Insect or blossom? Fairy, fragile thing,
Poised upon slender tip and quivering
To flight. A flower of the fields of air;
A jeweled moth, a butterfly with rare
And tender tints upon its downy wing,
A moment resting in our happy sight;
A flower held captive by a thread so light
Its petal wings of broidered gossamer
Are, light as the wind, with every wind astir—
Wafting sweet odor, faint and exquisite.
O dainty nursling of the field and sky,
What fairer thing looks up to heaven's blue
And drinks the noontide sun, the dawning's dew?
Thou winged bloom, thou blossom butterfly.' "

COLLECTING THINGS

The late J. P. Morgan's passion for collecting things seems not to be shared by the son. On no other ground can the sales of gems and bric-a-brac be explained, for it is not supposable that the son is in distress for the money. Once there was found among the treasures of the elder Morgan an article of great value, that had been stolen. Mr. Morgan had paid a high price for it, but he let it go back to the owners as pleasantly as though the experience of losing it were a pleasure. This act was much appreciated. Remaining in the Morgan collection is the will of Martha Washington, alleged to have been stolen also. A thief took it from the archives of Virginia. Demand has been made by the commonwealth. There has been threat of suit, and yet Morgan the younger clings to the faded manuscript. His conduct thus far precludes the thought that he is governed by sentiment. Had sentiment dominated him, the Morgan premises would not have been so marked by the presence of art auctioneers. So, evidently Morgan does not care much about the will as a relic. Since the title is questioned, he could not well put it on the market. Why not give it back to the owner? A precedent, right in the family, has been cited for even so extraordinary a course.—Pasadena News.

NO SETTERS AT BAPTIST PRAYER MEETING

Blessed indeed was the first prayer meeting at the Baptist church after the Brown and Curry revival. The regular lecture-room was out of the question; the main auditorium looked like a Sunday service. Testimony, prayer and song swept along and not one member of the Setter family present, it being understood that the Setters met with a serious accident during the recent revival, which proved fatal. Evangelist Brown officiated at the burial service and Mr. Curry sang so feelingly, "Gone and We Trust Forgotten."

The board of deacons remained till past eleven receiving those who desire to unite with the church by baptism or otherwise. It will require several sessions extraordinary to catch up with the work in hand.

Next Sunday morning Pastor Troy will baptize the first company won to Christ during the Brown and Curry revival.

In speaking on the question of salvation the Baptist preacher said in part:

"A man may be saved, physically, as from drowning in water; saved intellectually, as in the development and discipline of the mind by the most approved system of education; saved morally, by the strengthening of the will to resist bad influences that destroy the body, poison the soul and make one a menace to society. Bible salvation, however, while involving the welfare of body, mind and character, is something of far greater scope, comprehending a purpose transcendent and eternal. The body may be destroyed, the mind poorly trained and the character marred, and yet according to the Bible there may be salvation full and free.

"In order to an understanding of salvation reference is often made to the human and divine sides of sotereology. And yet, when God's side is perfectly understood, man's side is scarcely worth the mentioning. God has all wisdom, righteousness and power. He is the creator and preserver of all mankind. His is the supreme and ultimate will of the universe. Man is but clay in the hand of the infinite potter.

" 'No man can come unto me except the Father that sent me draw him,' John 6:44.

"Salvation is the gift of God. The analogy of the human eye makes the situation clear. If one would see the lids must be lifted that the optic nerve may respond to the vibrations of light, and nobody will deny the mystery of the whole process and attribute seeing to anything but the gift of nature. In salvation the soul turns toward God in repentance moved by faith and into the soul is poured the light of heaven.

"The sunflower opens its bosom as well as turns its face to the sun at the angle of efficiency so that the golden orb may shed abroad in the heart of the flower its vital rays. So does the child of God, born of the spirit and "not of the will of the flesh" turn toward the sun of righteousness and receive the healing rays.

"The parable of the vine and the branches further illustrates the secret of the Christian life. The branches must abide in the vine for only when perfectly joined to the vine can life flow and so produce fruit.

"The greatest lesson for every new convert to learn is that of absolute dependence upon the life of Christ. Thoughts of self lead to self righteousness and self-help. Thoughts of Christ lead to the spirit-filled and spirit-moved life. Salvation is Christ imparted. Paul wrote:

" 'I have been crucified with Christ and it is no longer I that live, but Christ liveth in me; and that life which I now live in the flesh I live in faith, the faith which is in the son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me,' Gal. 2:20.

"In the early church it was the regular practice to take all new converts and bury and raise them in water as a symbol of the union of the candidate with Christ in burial and resurrection. It is not true that any great mystery was attached to the water, for never was the water blessed or in any sense sacred, any available place being used as occasion demanded. The practice of immersion was the direct command of the Christ to his apostles (Mt. 28:19, Mark 16:16). In simple obedience and respect to Christ the apostles always commanded converts to be baptized. In the Acts of Apostles, the only book which records conversions to Christ in the sense in which men are now converted, without exception every person converted to Jesus Christ was baptized in water. At no time was there any controversy about the matter. It was not conceived to be the great essential of salvation. Rather did they simply do what they were commanded to do by Jesus Christ through the holy apostles.

"Paul it is who gives us the clearest statement of the beauty and significance of the divine ordinance of baptism.

" 'Or are ye ignorant that all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death. We were buried, therefore, with him through baptism into death; that like as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the father, so we also might walk in newness of life. For if we have become united with him in the likeness of his death we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection; knowing this, that our old man was crucified with him, that the body of sin might be done away, that so we should no longer be in bondage to sin; for he that hath died is justified from sin,' Rom. 6:3-7.

"Baptist is a beautiful form which no earnest Christian should dismiss lightly. Read Acts 8:26-40.

Poor old starving, bleeding, disordered, unhappy Mexico! Heaven alone knows what is to become of you—and heaven is not revealing your fate.

Very strange it seems that men will grow up in the same neighborhood, be educated at the same school, mingle in the same society, and then when municipal questions of importance come up for consideration these men will differ in opinion as to the merits of the question.

How much stock do you take in what a man long-windedly says about his own capacities and virtues?

RESULTS ARE CERTAIN

Don't imagine for a moment that advertising will not bring you results in your immediate field. That's an error that many merchants make, when they assure themselves that their store is so well known that it doesn't require newspaper advertising—that the trade will naturally drift his way, anyhow. There isn't a store anywhere in the world that has so secure a footing as that—not a single store—and you are not doing business in a field but that your sales can be increased by careful newspaper advertising. Whenever you get such an idea fixed in your mind, and really believe that there's nothing more to conquer, you are simply turning over ready money to the man that does possess the broader vision—you are ceding territory and rights to others that careful newspaper advertising would retain in your possession.—Venice Vanguard.

Dumb bells and Indian clubs are all right for exercise—but why not apply the same energy with the hoe, the spade and the axe? Also the lawn mower?

SCIENCE NOTES

The devolopment of the steam turbine has made possible electric generators more than twice the size formerly used.

Like a gigantic shovel, suspended between wheels, is a street cleaning implement that two Indiana men have invented.

Using "trackless trolleys," electric freight wagons and even a snow plow have been operated in Austria successfully.

A stationery washstand to be mounted over and empty into a bath tub has been invented for bathrooms of limited area.

Nevada again was the greatest silver producing state last year, followed in order by Idaho, Montana, Utah and Colorado.

There are about 12,000,000 acres of tillable lands in the Philippines, of which only about 7,500,000 acres are cultivated.

This is the season when nearly every litle bird one meets has a straw in its bill and is headed for the nest it is building. The very atmosphere is redolent with romance when the birds go nest-building.

Uncle Sam is a giant in strength, but not a bully in practice.

They left Wednesday night for Porterville, where they are looking for a location for their son, a physician of Iowa, then they will go to San Francisco, where they will spend some time at the exposition.

Mr. C. H. Sanders of 1510 West Seventh street gave a very pretty yellow and pink luncheon on Wednesday. Daffodils and carnations were used very effectively in decoration and the dainty luncheon at 1 o'clock carried out the same color scheme. Covers were laid for Mesdames Reed, Letton, Gibson, Hearnshaw, Viohl, Mahlman, Sanders and Misses Lundy and Ringer. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Sanders' mother, Mrs. Viohl, who has just returned from a trip to Chicago and the East.

AUTHENTIC MAPS

Filling a long-felt want, the state railroad commission announces the printing of an official railroad map of California, containing complete and accurate data on railroad and other transportation facilities, boundary lines, township and range lines, locations of cities, towns, waterways and mountain ranges.

In addition to the map, there are inserted maps of the city and county of San Francisco, San Francisco and vicinity, Los Angeles and vicinity and San Diego and vicinity. The large map is on a scale of fifteen miles to the inch, while the smaller maps are on the scale of three miles to the inch. The latter contain much detailed information on street railways and other features.

The maps are printed in different colors, national parks and monuments, bird reserves, forest reserves, Indian reservations, military and government reserves, each having a distinctive tint. All villages, towns and cities are indexed as to location and population. There is also a list of electric and steam railroads, with the mileage of each as of January 1, 1915.

Prepared by the engineering department of the commission, these maps will fill a want long felt by shippers and railroad operating and legal officials, of authoritative information on distances, relation of railway right-of-way to range lines, and other matters. Copies of the map are procurable through the railroad commission offices on payment of a small sum.

FASHION ITEMS OF INTEREST

A popular skirt for wash materials is cut in four gores and made with a wide panel back and front and a seam on each side.

Circular skirts are as sands of the sea. Those made of taffeta, faille, etc., average from four to six yards wide. When made of gabardine, serge, lightweight cloth, etc., they are made from two and one-half to four yards wide.

Plaited skirts are seen among the new models.

Flounced and ruffled skirts are the favorites for organdie, lace, batiste, chiffon and pompadour and Dresden taffeta.

The tunic skirt is by no means yet relegated to oblivion.

Suspender skirts are with us again.

Sport skirts are made with large patch pockets and trimmed with buttons.

Some of the new flared skirts are finished with "the cuff" bottom.

Scallops cut in square, round or pointed effects, is a favorite finish for this season's skirts. Those on skirts of silk are bound or corded on the edge either with the silk itself or in a contrasting color. Deep edgings of batiste, lace and embroideried organdie finished with round or square scallops or in deep vandyke points are much in evidence as the finish on the bottom of skirts of lingerie.

To meet the demand of the flared skirt, petticoats of taffeta are made with two graduated plaited ruffles edged with ruching.

Jackets are shown in military, eton, flared and belted effects.

Many corsages and short jackets are finished with basque ruffles. Peplums of various lengths are also in evidence.

Short coats and jackets of net are worn with silk skirts.

Waistcoats will be a feature of this season's models.

The sleeve is evidently a matter of personal choice, for although the full length sleeve is still in the lead, the three-quarter length sleeve is featured on many of the smart models, and the kimona sleeve is still among the survivors.

Hand and machine stitchery is featured on frocks of all materials from the dainty organdie to the street and coat suit suit of serge and gabardine.

Blouses of chiffon match the color of the skirt and coat suit.

Very attractive are the blouses of white handkerchief linen combined with plain colored linen, or linen striped in color.

Very charming is a blouse of natural colored batiste, the seams of which are joined by a fine narrow beading. It is trimmed with tiny buttons covered with batiste. The edges of the collar and cuff are embroidered in eyelets. Narrow black velvet ribbon is run through the eyelets and tied in a bow both at the neck and wrist.

Among the new collars are those that end on each side of the front, showing the bare throat in front—for many women refuse to give up the freedom and comfort of the bare throat, in spite of the modishness of the high collar and choker. These collars are embroidered in eyelets on each side, through which ribbon is run and tied in a small bow in the front.

High close stocks of muslin and lace are finished with a frill of lace.

Soft stocks of black satin are boned to keep them up, and are finished with lingerie collars or points.

Among the new neckwear are high collars of net and lace with frilly jabots or chemisettes attached.

Shoes with patent or dull leather vamps and uppers of buckskin, cloth, or fine kid in pearl gray, brown, castor, fawn and white, are among the smart spring models.

A new note in veiling is that of filet mesh with a border of lace. Both octagon and filet meshes are shown with a chenille dotted edge.

If the American people were of blizzard temperament, we would be in a tempest of international troubles at this juncture in history.

HOPE OF THE COUNTRY

We wonder how many of our readers ever read that fine little book called "Friendly Road," by David Grayson. It is a simple story of how this David Grayson was a farm-reared boy and then went into the city and lived until he had become nearly worn out. To save his life, he took up farming and regained his health. But one spring morning he started for a tramp of a week or more on the country roads. He had gotten tired of his pigs, his hens and his cows. He wanted to be free of the farm and its constant exactions for a time, and so he took this tramp with but little money in his pocket and a small store of provisions in his haversack.

Finally his money and his provisions ran out and he was face to face with sharp hunger. He came to a farmer and his boy who were hurrying to get a field of potatoes planted. Grayson threw off his pack and asked the farmer for a basket and went at dropping potatoes without a word of explanation. Back and forth over the field he went—Grayson, the farmer and the boy, Ben, and soon the task was ended. The farmer asked Grayson to supper, which, of course, he gladly accepted. He found the wife, a good motherly woman and two girls and an older son, all of whom gave him a good welcome because he had given the farmer a much needed lift. And so it continued for a couple of days. Then Grayson went on his way rejoicing. He records a deserved tribute to the American farmer in these words:

"No country after all produces any better crops than its inhabitants. And as I traveled onward I liked to think of those brave, temperate, industrious, God-fearing and friendly American people. I have no fear of the country while so many of them are still to be found upon the farms and in the towns of this land."—Hoard's Dairyman.

MOCK OYSTER SOUP

Salsify, or the oyster plant, is one of the delicious vegetables of the season if well cooked, but it is not as well known as it ought to be. A soup may be made of it which can hardly be told from oyster stew, and dietically it is a more wholesome and dainty soup for a goose dinner than a consomme.

Salsify wilts almost as quickly as new carrots, so if you have no good place to keep it in, as soon as it comes into the house, wash it and put it into a wet newspaper. It will grow black almost as quickly as cut, therefore it must be prepared as follows: Cut off the leaves and if they are fresh and green save them, as they are nice for a salad or to eat with salt. Scrape the root from the crown down and when it is clean commence to slice from the small end, dropping the slices in water acidulated with lemon juice. Do not waste the crown, which you can peel if it is too ridgy to scrape. Put on to cook in boiling salted water if for soup. If for vegetable you can use acidulated water to keep it white. Boil gently about there-fourths of an hour so that all the water will not boil away. One bunch of salsify slices will make about two cups and a half. Cook this amount in four cups of salted water, and add a pint of milk and a small piece of butter. Before adding the milk, take out a few of the slices and butter them and finally add to the soup. They suggest oyster. Put the rest, cooked up with the milk, through a sieve and serve in cups in which you have dropped a little piece of butter and perhaps a tablespoon of cream. If then you add a heaping tablespoon of freshly rolled cracker to each, the resemblance to oyster stew is close. The milk may curdle, but after it is put through the sieve the soup will look all right.

SIGNS OWN DEATH CERTIFICATE

To sign one's own death certificate and to make one's own funeral arrangements is not often done, but such was the act of Robert G. Miller, a young man who died at the county hospital on Thursday, March 4.

Mr. Miller, a native of New York, was but 25 years of age and had been in California for three years for tuberculosis. In October he grew worse and was taken to the county hospital. Thinking that he would not live long and desiring to relieve his mother, Mrs. G. A. Miller, who lives in Bronx, New York City, of the responsibility of funeral arrangements, he had the nurse telephone for Mr. Strother, the undertaker at Wilcox avenue and Hollywood boulevard. Mr. Strother went to see Mr. Miller and was shocked at the gruesome requests made so calmly by the young man. After making arrangements for his casket and grave at the cemetery, Mr. Miller made out all personal and statistical particulars of his death certificate and signed the same as being the informant. When he had finished he said: "Well now I feel better, I've got that off my mind."

Mr. Strother had cheered him many times since that time by calls or sending books, etc., and he seemed to gain in strength, but death came to him suddenly Thursday of last week.

Burial was made in the Hollywood cemetery Saturday.—Hollywood Citizen.

It will be a mighty inspiring moment in the history of this old world when the nations of Europe march up to the goddess Peace and salute her with a kiss once more.
